

Until I started subscribing to XM satellite radio, I hardly ever listened to the radio stations mainly because they didn't offer anything I was interested in listening to. I get sick of endless commercials. Also, when my husband and I travel, It's tiring having to constantly search for the next receivable radio station. With XM, we can tune in to any kind of music, news, weather, or travel conditions and never have to worry about losing the signal at a crucial moment. Leave things as they are. Reject NAB's petition 04-160, because I have a right to listen to whatever I choose, whenever I choose.
